Mountain States Construction Honors
Sarah Broughton, AIA “Top 20 Under 40”

Denver/Aspen, Colorado - April 8, 2010

Mountain States Construction magazine has honored Sarah Broughton, AIA with its annual “Top 20 Under 40” award. Winners were selected through a highly competitive process. Peers, co-workers and managers nominated more than 40 people from the Colorado construction and design industries. “It’s an honor to receive this award with my peers in the A/E/C industry.” states Broughton.

A panel of seven judges selected the Top 20 based on criteria that included: achievement of, or progress toward, industry certifications, community service; industry involvement; and contribution to creating or building landmark Colorado projects. Sarah has been leading Rowland+Broughton Architecture and Urban Design as Principal for seven years. Her community involvement includes contributions to various non-profit associations such as Girls to Women and the Aspen Young Professionals Association. Currently, she serves on the City of Aspen’s Historic Preservation Commission.

Rowland+Broughton Architecture and Urban Design was established in 2003. Today R+B is a bustling 11 person design ‘think tank’ with offices in Denver and Aspen. Having both an urban and small town office has given the firm the opportunity to work on a wide range of project types and sizes. Their diverse project portfolio includes commercial, hospitality, high-end residential, interior design, institutional master planning and new town planning.
