

BUZZWORTHY

- Jim Polep has joined the Engel & Völkers Aspen office as a real estate adviser.

Polep once owned and operated Aspen furnishing and interior retailer Montecito, which later evolved into Montecito Loft & Home at Willits.

Polep started his real estate career in Aspen in 2014 and has since become licensed in California.

- Colorado Homes & Lifestyles magazine recently inducted Basalt's Harry Teague of Harry Teague Architects into its annual Circle of Excellence Awards.

Teague was 1 of 5 Colorado residential designers who received the award at a luncheon in Denver on March 10.

In March, the magazine featured five of Teague's residential projects and one of his institutional-educational projects.

- Aspen's Rowland+Broughton Architecture/Urban Design/Interior Design has been recognized by the American Institute of Architects Denver Section with a 2015 Architect Choice Award for the studio's McLain Flats residence project in Aspen.

The award was presented in partnership with luxe interiors + design magazine during a reception at the American Institute of Architects Colorado office.

Rowland+Broughton's Delvon Nemecek teamed with Sarah Broughton on the project. The general contractor was Regan Construction and KL&A was the structural engineer.
