A CASE FOR COLOR

Color Crush
Designed by Mathias Hahn for Marset, the Gambosa table lamp showcases a playful mix of rounded, sculptural forms. Its orange and pink hues evoke the nostalgic palettes of the early aughts, adding a warm, graphic punch to any space.
$935–$1,160; lightology.com

Modern Whimsy
The Louie side chair, designed by Helen Bergin for Abner Henry, is expertly crafted from solid maple. Drawing on 1940s design influences, it brings a touch of storybook charm to any setting.

Think Green
This gorgeous vase is handcrafted in Guadalajara using recycled glass sourced from local post-consumer bottles. Crushed, melted, and mouth-blown by skilled artisans, it showcases time-honored glassblowing techniques with a sustainable twist.
$277; obakki.com

High-Style Home
Designer Alfredo Paredes spent over 30 years at Ralph Lauren, so it's no surprise his eponymous interiors firm is rooted in a refined, modern take on classic luxury. His new collection for Kravet Couture features richly layered patterns and colors inspired by his Latin heritage. Pictured here is Yacuma, a modern patchwork using true ikat fabrics.

Luxe Lounger

The Teia Chaise by Four Hands is inspired by vintage Swedish textiles with a subtle nod to Japanese minimalism. It features striking geometric upholstery, but the standout detail is the integrated cylindrical bolster cushion.
$1,899; fourhands.com

Al Dente

Australian design darling Tali Roth has a new hardware collection with Lo & Co, and the inspiration is as playful as it is unexpected. The Orietta knob is modeled after hand-formed orecchiette pasta—a delightful blend of design and whimsy. Bon appétit!
$39; loandcointerior.com

Mochi Moisture

This daily moisturizer is powered by rice and Japanese shiso, a fragrant herb from the mint family. It delivers deep hydration, supports the skin barrier, and leaves skin with a signature "mochi-like" bounce.
$48; damdamtokyo.com

Box It Up

No one does home accessories quite like Jayson Home, and their latest drop includes a chic assortment of beautifully crafted boxes. Style one on a coffee table to tuck away remotes or store handwritten notes and keepsakes.

Campsite Upgrade

Inspired by the nostalgic utility of classic camping gear, the HAY Outdoor Market collection by British designer Jasper Morrison brings a refined, minimalist edge to outdoor excursions. The folding sofa seats three with ease—perfect for campsites or just keep it in the trunk for impromptu sunset lounging.
$395; store.moma.org

Eco, Effortlessly

Mill is one of the smartest additions to the kitchen in 2026. This sleek, odorless food recycler transforms scraps into nutrient-rich grounds for your garden. With premium finishes and a once-a-month emptying schedule, it's as convenient as it is sustainable.
Starting at $999; mill.com

Mythical Motif

Ward + Gray's Batie tiles are inspired by the historic Château de La Bâtie d'Urfé and its mythical grotte de rocailles. The intricate shell motif adds depth and texture, even in spaces far from the sea.

Jewelry for the Home
Corey Damen Jenkins's new lighting collection for Eichholtz is boldly architectural, with sculptural forms that read like functional art. Each piece delivers a striking statement for the home.
$2,195; eichholtz.com

Kiss, Kiss
Gone are the tingly, irritation-prone lip plumpers of the late '90s. Tower 28's ShineOn Plumping Lip Jelly uses plant-based ingredients to gently boost circulation for a naturally fuller pout.
$18; tower28beauty.com

Kitchen Classic
Inspired by utilitarian American kitchens of the 1930s and '40s, Brizo's Faircroft™ Kitchen Collection focuses on functional design and durable materials. And for the first time, Brizo is offering an unlacquered brass finish, which will naturally patina over time.
